Little about me

I have master's degree in publishing and printing that where i get my base knowledge of design and realized that what i want to do. Most of knowledge i gained through self-study.

When I was working in nailsmnia I had a lot of design-related tasks like creating banners for main page or title pics for products etc. During my work there i had a lot of communication about tech side of web pages so i started to go deeper with it and started learning basics of web development.

For now i continue to learn, and have long distance plans, like learn react and node so i can reach my main goal - to become professional full-stack developer.
